Only a few hours before Johnson had taken the presidential oath in a jet plane standing on a Dallas runway, ready to depart for Washington. It was a heart-tugging ceremony wit-nessed by the newly widowed Jacqueline Kennedy, her clothing still stained from her husband's blood. Johnson was riding two cars behind the President in the cavalcade through Dallas streets when the shots came from ambush, taking the life of the chief executive and wounding Gov.

John B. Connally of Texas. A short time later in a crowded compartment of the presidential jet Johnson, his left hand on a small Bible and his right upraised, swore to "preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States.'

The oath was administered, at Johnson's request, by the first woman ever to perform that function, U.S. Dist. Court Judge Sarah T. Hughes of Dal las. She wept during the ceremony, which took place at 2:38

der, "Now let's get airborne."

It was a scene of eerie tragedy as the big plane landed in the night at Andrews Air Force Base near Washington. Johnson and his wife waited inside the plane as the coffin, with Mrs. Kennedy standing at its head, was lowered in a great yellow cargo lift to a gray am-

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lee | Curry said Oswald admitted Harvey Oswald the man to officers in questioning Friday Curry said Oswald admitted night that he was "a member of the Communist party.

The police chief said, "apparently he was proud of being a Communist. He didn't try to hide it.

The Defense Department disclosed today that the hand written letter from Oswald to Connally was in the personnel records of Oswald which were flown here from a record center in St. Louis.

This development could pose the question of whether Connally - rather than Kennedymight have been the primary target if the government's charge that Oswald did the shooting is sustained. Dallas Police Chief Jesse Curry said today the police never had Oswald listed on their suspicious list. "We have another man working in that same building who has been listed in our subversive files since 1955,' Curry said. Police were seeking this man for questioning.

native of picking a candidate to contest a man whose roots reach deep in the conservative South but who has come around to espousing civil rights and almost every liberal cause.

This could be disappointing to the supporters of Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., who counted heavily on their man's outspoken opposition to Kennedy's policies and Goldwater's conservative stance to win the Republican nomination for him

It could lift the hopes of New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller in his self-designated underdog fight for the GOP nomination. Rockefeller could cite a and consistent record of rights against Johnson's come-lately declarations for equal opportunity.

By and large, the passing of Kennedy could go a long way to remove the psychological fear of the Republicans that a President seeking a second term would be nearly unbeatable. This could result in a blossoming of other candidates such as Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania and Gov. George Romney of Michigan.

Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who lost the presidency to Kennedy by a razorthin margin in 1960, also could benefit, in that one objection to him was that he had lost to Kennedy once and probably would go down to defeat again.

Johnson has almost a year to build a record of his own, but he will have to stand mostly on the accomplishments of the Kennedy administration.

The new President has always been a hard driving but cautious politician. He found himself miscast in a secondary role as vice president.

Among Johnson's qualities is a kind of resignation to the in-The original plans for the evitable and a patience to try to bend events his way. Robert Kennedy probably could offer the only substantial threat to Johnson's nomination in 1964, in the unlikely event Kennedy would choose to run. Leadership change brings uncertainty

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Johnson seems strongly committed by his public statements of the past three years to carry forward the major lines of U.S. foreign policy developed by President Kennedy.

But the change in leadership of the Western alliance so suddenly wrought Friday by an assassin's bullets has inevitably opened a period of uncertainty about the future direction of U.S. relations with the rest of

But now that he is President it remains to be seen how he will handle such issues, especially the possibility of any further agreements with Moscow. A critical related question is continues whether Soviet Premier Khrushchev will seek to promote friendly relations with the new U.S. chief executive at the outset or will embark on a strategy of probing and testing, perhaps by some new tension-creating move around Berlin. The uncertainty about policy extends also to the future makeup of the inner circle of men, including Secretary of State Dean Rusk, whose advice decisively influenced the course of diplomacy during the Kennedy administration.

Washington officials expect, however, that for the immediate future Johnson will retain key Kennedy advisers. They are men with whom he worked closely as vice president.

On the larger issues of foreign policy Johnson has been a public advocate and defender of Kennedy's search for improved | McKinley while maintaining a high state of military preparedness.

While vice president, Johnson spoke as a member of the Kennedy team. He participated in meetings of the National Security Council and various policymaking conferences and thus had opportunity himself to help shape policy. If he had any reservations on specific policies, he subordinated them to President Kennedy's final decision.

Because of his participation in policy-making, Johnson has been called the best informed vicepresident in U.S. history on foreign policy and related military questions. But his role was larger than that.

He was President Kennedy's most active goodwill ambassador, and during the three years of the Kennedy administration he visited at least two dozen countries, making speeches, shaking hands, and conferring with government leaders.

There were foreign problems old and new during his administration. Inherited from previous administrations was the Cold War with Soviet Russia.

Despite Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's determination to rid West Berlin of Allied occupation troops, Kennedy held American forces there. But the President replied: "In the event of any military we will immediately honor our American system to protect this ed. hemisphere against external aggression."

Later, in a speech, Kennedy warned Communist foes and United States would act on its own against Cuba's Reds if threatened. This is what he did in October, 1962.

The nation's first inkling came Sunday, Oct. 21. There were re- antine ports of tension in Washington, but newsmen were unable to pin down the cause. On Monday it was announced Kennedy would address the nation at 7 p.m. on a matter of greatest urgency. Meanwhile, it was learned that congressional leaders had been summoned back to the capital.

At the appointed hour a seriseen on the television screen. Without wasting words he outlined evidence of atomic missile sites in Cuba. He blamed Soviet Russia, which had been assuring the United States it was sending only defensive weapons to the island. Said Ken-

He ordered a quarantine on progress Khrushchev warned all such offensive weapons for Kennedy to "call a halt to the Cuba and said ships carrying them would be turned back.

Twenty hours after the proclamation was issued a Russian ship carrying oil was intercepted. It was allowed to proceed.

Tension mounted. The Kremlin stalled. On Friday, Oct. 26, the State Department called attention to the President's speech in which he said if missile site preparation continued "further action will be justified."

At 9 p.m. that night a letter arrived from Khrushchev. Although not explicitly stated, it contained an offer to withdraw the offensive weapons under U. N. supervision in return for a guarantee the United States would not invade Cuba. The following day-Saturday-a second note from Russia offered to trade Cuba bases for U. S. bases in Turkey.

Two days later the men had eaten all the coconuts on the island's two trees. Then they swam to a larger island where there were plenty.

This island was close by the cone-mountained Japanese base of Kolombangara.

For three successive nights, Kennedy, once a backstroke on the Harvard swimming team, put on a lifebelt and swam far out to try to signal another PT boat. But none came into view.

At the Ypsilanti plant the first news was received by the plant's industrial relations manager who passed it on to the acting plant manager and employes were soon turning on radios to hear the news. The flag in front of the plant was lowered to half staff as soon as the news was received.

Workers heard the news in numbed silence at area General Motors plants. All three plants, Hydra-matic, Fisher Body and Corvair, were scheduled to operate as usual today.

James E. Tobias. Corvair plant manager heard the news of the president being wounded over the radio and relayed it immediately to plant workers over the intercommunication system.

Production did not cease, but talk among the assembly plant workers diminished to a hush. The switchboard was jammed immediately as wives called to inform husbands of the news.

At the Fisher Body plant, word of the tragedy was heard over a radio in the plant protection department, and relayed by word-of-mouth among the

There is a passage of scrip-ture in the seventeenth chapter of Luke which portrays to us a scene of extreme human affliction encountered by the Great Physician, Jesus Christ. Verses twelve and thirteen state: "And as He entered into a certain village there met Him 10 men that were lepers, which stood afar off. And they lifted up their voices and said, 'Jesus, Master, have mercy on us."

Here we see 10 men all suffering from the dread disease called leprosy, united crying in agony unto the Son of God. The 10 men were directed by Him to do what appeared absurd. The law stated they were to when they were cleansed.

Ten men were miraculously healed through obedience, but only the one man turned back to glorify God. The fact that only one returned to give thanks becomes arresting and revealing, showing as it does, that He waits for the worship of healed

THE WORLD OF RELIGION

Kennedy's faith led to God

By GEORGE W. CORNELL AP Religion Writer

According to his faith, President Kennedy's death Friday was a meeting place between him and his God.

As the moment of death approached, a Roman Catholic priest standing over him uttered these words, as set down in the church rites:

"Go forth, Christian soul, out of this world, in the name of God, the Father Almighty, who created thee; in the name of Jesus Christ, the Son of the Living God, who suffered for thee

It is an interval of mystery, as the church sees it, a time of pain and sorrow, but also of as-surance, because Christ already has joined men in it in His Crucifixion, and wrought victory over it for His own. As administered to the dying

A pile of colorfully wrapped velveteen to calico-make excellent wrapping material, as do cotton terry cloth towels, or sheets of decorative Christmas tree cotton. To tie up packages, there's colored yarn, bias tape, lace, or cotton rick-rack.

A variety of original package trims-wreaths, candy canes, trees-can be created with rickrack. Form an attractive Christmas tree with rows of green rickrack in graduated lengths. Glue on colored sequins for tree ornaments, and use bias tape for the trunk and base.

To please a lady of any age, fashion a very special present with frostings of ruffles and lace. Trim a velveteen-wrapped package with white cotton lace, eyelet ruffles, bands of cotton embroidery, or frilly organdy appliques.

For a devotee of early Americana, use lengths of red calico or a gay provincial print as gift wrappings. Tie up the package with heavy twine, and decorate with an arrangement of pine sprays and pine cones.

Gifts for the kitchen might be practical, but they also can be the prettiest packages under the tree. Use cotton dish towels in colorful prints for wrapping, and tuck small kitchen acces sories in the bow arrangement. Decorate a gift wrapped in white tissue paper with a set of red cotton terry cloth pot-hold ers. Or use red shelf paper for wrapping, and pin on a doll-size apron cut from a small-figured red cotton print.

If the gift is for the bath-fragrant soap or bath salts wrap it in a cotton terry cloth hand towel. You might package a towel set in a matching floralprinted bath towel. Decorate with an arrangement of artificial flowers.

Since a child is eager to tear off the wrappings and see what's inside, the simpler the wrappings for a child's gift the better. Why not use the color edition of the comics, and tie up with strands of red and green cotton yarn. Or wrap in plain tissue paper, and tie with a red jump rope that has jingle bells attached to handles.

If there's a baby on your Christmas list, delight the mother by wrapping his gift in one of the new cotton stretch diapers. Fasten with colored diaper pins, and use pink or blue bias tape for tying

Whatever materials you use for wrapping gifts, remember that the personal touch is the ingredient that makes giving a fine art. Wrap each gift with imagination, to suit the contents or the person who receives it, and you'll add an extra measure of thoughtfulness to the simplest

The original affliction was described as only minor with William Clay Ford, a Yale man who specialized in soccer and tennis and went from there to a momma and poppa business the family owns

The son of Edsel Ford and Grandson of Henry, Bill had purchased 2 per cent of the Detroit Lions mostly for giggles.

Soon, his interest in the team expanded. He started to make road trips. On the day of the games, his appetite strangely vanished. He forgot the names of his wife and children. The malady had spread and the poor man was hooked, irretrievably.

It is not surprising that his condition should lead to a bid on his part of $6 million for the Lions, an offer which doubtless will be

In Philadelphia, a sale price of $4.5 million had been placed on the Eagles, with a wealthy Miamian, George Storer, negotiating for the franchise. Storer also owns a Detroit television station. Why are men otherwise prudent in business affairs willing to pay such unreasonable prices for pro football teams and how costly will it eventually become to indulge this hobby? We brought up the matter recently with the champion patsy of the National League, Daniel Reeves, who bought the Los Angeles

Rams last winter for $7.1 million. Actually, Reeves didn't pay that much, since he already owned a third of the stock. But his purchase of the other two-thirds was based on that figure. 'The prices we are paying for franchises these days are rediculous," admits Reeves. "They violate every logical rule of investment on the basis of earnings. But the price is dictated by supply and demand. There are only 14 national league franchises in a very large country, and there happens to be a demand for all of them." Viewing dispassionately the positive and negative aspects of buying a pro football franchise, Reeves points out:

'You have on the positive side certain possibilities in television and pay TV. You also are getting a running business with valuable players, and you are buying not only your club, but the Browns and Packers and Bears and all the others in the league which contribute to your earnings.

"On the negative side, there is limited growth to pro football. You can play just so many games a year and you can get just so

"You also are investing in a business which rises or falls in seven days. (The number of home dates for each team). Bad weather on those days can ruin your whole year.

"Obviously, pro football is not for widows and orphans. It is a risky proposition for people like the Fords who needn't worry about getting back their investment within their lifetime.

Reeves bought the Rams in 1941 for $125,000. Today, one can pay almost that much to a rockie quarterback in bonus and a three-

"We paid for potential," explains Reeves. "We have population growth in Los Angeles. We have a big break in the weather and we also have the largest radio market in the country. The clubs divide

When he got the Rams, Reeves withdrew his Philadelphia offer. Into Winter schedule

The deal for the Eagles right now has been jammed by a linto winter schedule clause in the National League constitution which forbids ownership of a club by a company engaged in another business

For private reasons, presumably pertaining to taxes, Storer is trying to manipulate the purchase of the club by a radio station after a one-week layoff for a he owns. He is willing to meet the sale price of $4.5 million, but the league insists that the club be bought independently.

Sports world stilled by Kennedy's death

EAST LANSING (AP) -The Michigan State-Illinois Big Ten championship football game was postponed today and will be played here next Thursday on Thanksgiving Day at 1:30 p.m. Announcement of the postponement came from the office of MSU President John Hannah.

ANN ARBOR - Today's Michigan - Ohio State Big Ten football game has been canceled because of the death of President John F. Kennedy. The University of Michigan announced the cancellation shortly after 9 a.m. The cancellation was announced by Michigan President Harlan Hatcher.

Dr. Hatcher issued a statement saying:

"President Harlan Hatcher and President Novice G. Fawcett of Ohio State have announced that in solemn recognition of the great national tragedy today's game between the University of Michigan and Ohio State University will not be played."

Tourney called

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) - Officials of the Cajon Classic Golf Tournament called off Saturday's third round because of the assassination of President Kennedy

They rescheduled the windup of the $20,000 tournament as a Bob Goetz sloshed through the rain with a 4-under-par 67 Friday to take the second-round

Two Michigan games, Illinois Michigan State and Ohio "We all feel a deep loss and State at Michigan, were scheduled to be played, despite a request by Gov. George Romney that they be postponed.

"We feel that it is in the best national interests and tradition to carry on," said officials of the two schools in a statement, "feeling that in so doing we are carrying out the wishes of our late President whose deep interest and concern for the physical training and welfare of our youth is so widely known." Other Big Ten games were put off. So was Notre Dame-Iowa. All major games in the East were called off. Big Six games on the West Coast were postponed for a week. They will set-

Colonial is 'perfect for family'

Four second-floor bedrooms are away from living area

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN The Colonial home, spacious and roomy, is a perfect choice for family living.

Today's design, for example, provides four bedrooms. They're on the second floor, well away from the living-working areas on the main floor. Each bedroom is cross-ventilated and boasts a roomy closet. All are close to the bath, which has a built-in vanity. The main floor is well arranged to take care of the needs of a large family. The living room is wonderfully spacious. It runs from front to back of the house. A handsome fireplace, flanked by windows, brightens the long side wall. There's plenty of wall space to allow a variety of furniture arrangements A separate dining room with

NEW YORK (AP) - The nation's three major television and radio networks scrapped all commercials and entertainment programs out of respect for the death Friday of President Ken-

The National Broadcasting Co., American Broadcasting Co., and Columbia Broadcasting System all said they would devote their entire network radio and television programs to news of the assassination and all allied incidents.

The Mutual Broadcasting system said it would ban commercials and entertainment features on its radio network until after the President's funeral.

ABC said its commercial and entertainment ban would remain in effect indefinitely. NBC said it would observe the commercial and entertainment blackout "sometime Saturday

CBS said it would not return commercials or entertainment programs to its network until after the President's burial. All networks said they would continue broadcasts on radio and television through Friday

Death shocks world

The faces of these two Ypsilantians reflect the stunned disbelief of persons throughout the nation and world yesterday as they learned of the assassination of President Kennedy. They stopped on a downtown street corner to read of the President's sudden, shocking death.

Sorrowful nation stunned by death, united in grief By The Associated Press

The assassination of President Kennedy Friday brought forth an outpouring of grief from men in high office across the have been particularly close be-Lament crossed party lines and differences.

Stunned almost into disbelief, they called for prayer.

In the words of Colorado Gov. John Love, a Republican, the President's death does "not call for words, but for sorrow." Former President Harry S. Truman in Independence, Mo., the unharmed target of an assassination attempt 13 years ago, was too stunned for immediate comment.

In New York, two former presidents, Dwight D. Eisenhower and Herbert Hoover, issued statements of sorrow.
